

‘Higher education until now had developed only part of the brain. This is due to its fragmented approach in which students focus on isolated laws of nature in each discipline. This approach cannot enliven the total brain. Consequently, students’ total creative potential and intelligence have remained undeveloped. This inadequate and incomplete education is the cause of the stress, strain, and problems in the world.

‘Through Consciousness-Based Education founded by Maharishi, students experience their own Self, the most silent, peaceful, blissful level of consciousness. This holistic experience of consciousness is the only experience that awakens total brain functioning.

‘As a result, students grow in the ability to achieve anything they desire, not through hard work but through thinking from the most refined and powerful level of consciousness, where thought is most creative and engages the support of Nature’s intelligence to achieve the goal.’
